

Instructions for authors and further details:

<http://ijheld.lakeheadu.ca>

Poetry

Genevieve Mackenzie, University of Toronto, Ontario Institute for Studies in Education

Published online: February 5, 2017

Edition period: Volume 3, 2016

---

To cite: Mackenzie, G. (2016). Poetry. The International Journal of Holistic Early Learning and Development, 3, 78-79.

---

PLEASE SCROLL DOWN

Poetry

Genevieve Mackenzie

University of Toronto

Ontario Institute for Studies in Education

Never Set Limits

The universal sum of knowledge is unbounded

Potential cannot be measured

This leaves us astounded

Our endless abilities need to be treasured

We live in a world of possibilities

An end does not exist

We need to teach to use one's abilities in face of disabilities

This notion is often missed

We walk through life facing ubiquitous illusions

Our understanding of limits reflects mere delusions

Awake and Learning

At the start moving through the unknown

The picture is opaque

Perpetual pantomime

To learn then awake

The need to differentiate

The unknown needs to become routine

To open the gate and begin to advocate

For everything once hidden to become seen

For the picture to become clearer

To leave what was once misunderstood

For the surroundings to become nearer

At the end moving through what is understood

To be awake then learn

Genevieve Mackenzie is a doctoral candidate at Ontario Institute for Studies in Education in the department of Developmental Psychology and Education at the University of Toronto. Her research interests include learning exceptionalities and literacy.